Threatened by Native Aversion to Spanish Oppression.

MANY OATH-BOUND SOCIETIES

Prepared to Precipitate a Revolution at an Early Date.

A MODERN PRISONER OF CHILLON

Cuba is again undermined with oath-bound secret societies composed of the wealthiest and most determined of the natives. and the deadly torch of revolution against the oppression and tyranny of the Spanish authorities may be applied at any moment. A native-born American, at present engaged in one of the large American projects in Cuba, is stopping at the Oakland Hotel while in the city and yesterday gave the details and causes of the revolution which he declares is inevitable. Owing to the strict surveillance everyone in Cuba is continually under and the grave possibility of his being punished by exile or something worse, it would be extremely inadvisable to publish his name. He is vouched for, however, by prominent Pittsburgers and his utterances are not considered idle sensationalisms.

"The political state of affairs in Cuba," he said, "is ominous in itself. The people are fully cognizant of their condition in comparison with other nations. They harbor rancorous feelings against the oppressive hand of Spain who has not only despoiled them of their possessions, but con-tinues to grind them down by exorbitant taxes and severe punishment. Everyone is under the surveillance of the Spanish authorities, and there is no power in the world hated more by each and every class of citizens than is the Spanish Government by the Cubans.

Cubaus Desirous of Home Rule. "They want their government to be in the hands of their own people, who will respect their rights and advance their interests, and they want the State divorced from the church. It would be difficult to define which of the two important measures they desire first. They are now doing as they have been doing for countless years past, filling the pockets of impoverished Spanish grandees and supporting a vast army of clergy, and as a result with progressive, intelligent people they object and intend to carry their objections to the point of conflict where they can have it decided by force, as they realize the hopelessness of attaining their ends in any other way.

"The Government of Cuba is that of Spain.

The chief official is the Captain General.
He is and always has been a titled Spaniard whose ancestors lost their wide possessions during some one of the many Spanish wars, and he finds himself with nothing but the prestige of an honored name. He is sent to Cuba for the express purpose of extracting all the wealth possible from the natives. He appoints his own governors and levies the taxes as he sees fit. The streets of the cities of Cuba are in a frightful condition. The sewers are nothing but ditches running along the surface of the earth. Disease is bred in all quarters, and yet each year a tax for the building of sewers and the repair of the streets is levied, but the condition remains the same. It is useless to appeal, for the Captain General has absolute power, and petitions that are not destroyed by his dependents exist but a moment in his hands.

Cubans Not Allowed to Fight. "No Cuban is permitted to enter the army or navy, as it would be dangerous to teach them the art of wariare. The cities are filled with soldiers who are divided into three classes, the civil and the municipal authorities and the Spanish army. In Havana there are eight Spanish forts, each containing a garrison of soldiers. Besides this there are upward of 1,000 pieces of heavy actillers. In Spanisco, acts of 60 000 inhabitants, there are 2 barricades, 4 regiments of infantry, 2 regiments of cav-alry, 5 batteries and 1 gunboat always in the harbor.

"Retribution for Nihilistic utterances is swift and terrible. The castle of Moro, lo-cated in the harbor of Santiago, now con-tains a number of political prisoners, and their treatment is barbarous. This historic bastile was built in the sixteenth century, and previous to the present time of invention and powerful arms was impregnable.

It was here the massacre of the 42 Americans and Cubans of the vessel Virginius occurred in 1872. The vessel, under command of Captain Fry, was captured by a Spanish gunboat, and the 250 men taken onto land gunboat, and the 200 men that stone wall and all ranged against the solid stone wall preparatory to all being shot at once. After 42 had been cruelly murdered the arrival of an English man-of-war answered the Ameri-cans' signal of distress and saved the re-maining 208 from death.

"In the Castle de Moro is now a political prisoner who has not seen the light of day, except by dim reflection, for many years, and as he is a life prisoner, the chances of his ever breathing the free air depend entirely upon the success of the revolution. He is never allowed to converse with any person, and spends his hours in the most desolate solitude. His coarse food is brought to him three times a day and the keepers are not allowed to exchange a word with him. What this means may be better imagined by freedom-loving Americans than described.

Waiting Years for a Trial.

"Another case of Cuban justice is that of a man who stole a watch worth some $80 two years ago and is still in prison awaiting his first trial. These military and judicial conditions may be the better realized by comparing them to the state of affairs in Homestead at present where men are supporting an army to protect themselves porting an army to protect themselves against themselves. No Cuban is allowed to represent himself in the Spanish courts, and they are denied all privileges of holding responsible positions. The Cuban is the prey of the Spaniard and his soul re-volts as his body has in times gone by."
"How will it be possible for the Cubans to defeat the Spaniards?"

"By assistance of the native Cubans in America, of whom there are large numbers, by assistance from Americans who have monetary interests in Cuba and by the natives of Cuba. The Cubans are in commu-nication with the societies in America and the present state of affairs is well known both in Cuba and in America among the natives. At present the authorities are very vigilant and very watchful.

Dynamite Kept Off the Island, "No dynamite or explosives other than powder is admitted and the powder is all stored-upon a small islet, under the care of officers, and miners are only given a small quantity at a time and then only upon the payment of 60 cents per keg—a rate in itself most exhorbitant. But when the time comes the natives will be armed with the most modern arms and munitions of war, and the carage will be dreadful."

"Is the coast guarded well enough to pre-vent smuggling of the arms?"

"All except a small portion along the northern shore. Here boats may land, but northern shore. Here boats may land, but the risk is great as gunboats are continually skirting the island. The people have little opportunity for drilling and practicing, but over in Key West, which is a hot bed of Cubans, they are teaching and learning rapidly. The Cuban is lazy, but when such an important moment as this arrives they awake and their alertness is disastrous. As it was in the time of the Gariballi insurance it was in the time of the Garibaldi insurrec-tion in Italy so will it be in Cuba, only the results will be different."

"Are not the possibilities that the threatened revolution will result as disastrously for the Cubans as the revolution of '68-78 did?"

People Prepared for a Revolution "No, for the people are better prepared, and then again the population is much larger and the people better versed in the art of warfare. A great many Qubans have been schooled in American military acudemies and are better prepared to marshal forces than their lathers were several years ago. Some of the leaders of the movement are the sons of martyrs of the previous revolution, and the great injustice that has been done them still rankles in that has been done them still rankles in their bosom and they are more bitter than ever before. Then again the success of the Congressional party in Chile stirs them up and they are doubly enthused with the prospects of a similar victory. The Cubans are dangerous people when aroused and they are in that condition at present."

"Will the natives of the neighboring islands assist in the struggle?"

"No, they will not. That is such is the islands assist in the struggle?"

"No, they will not. That is, such is the impression in Guba. The people of the neighboring islands are dependents of the other European powers and the mother country would scarcely allow herself to be drawn into the conflict by an interior strife in an island governed by a power with which she is at peace. No, the struggle will be confined, but even so the prospects for success are good. And," concluded the gentleman, "the day may soon come for the beginning of the trouble."

A WOOD STREET SPRINTING MATCH Ended by a Shot in the Air by a Con

Constable Groetzinger, of Alderman Gripp's office, had an exciting episode last evening that caused quite a flurry in the neighborhood of Wood street and Fifth avenue. Groetzinger arrested Frank Dunne for assault and battery upon the complaint of Mattie Miller, and was transferring his prisoner to jail in default of $300 bail. As the two approached Fifth avenue from Wood street Dunne decided upon making a dash for liberty. He seized upon a favorable moment and dashed away from the constable, leaving his coat in the officer's hands. An instant later there was a lively little foot race. Dunne is something of a sprinter and was distancing Groetzinger when the latter drew his revolver and fired in the air. The effect was electrical. Dunne collapsed and shortly afterward was a guest of Warden McAleese A CHILD REARED IN VICE.

Man and Woman Locked Up in Jall for Cruelty and Neglect. Andrew and Annie Jones, of Craig and Robinson street, were arrested and lodged in jail last night, charged with cruelty and neglect. The case is one of the Anti-Cruelty Society's, and the information was made by Agent M. E. Dorente. Constable O. A. Tanner, of Alderman Cabill's office, made the arrest and took the 9-year-old girl, Murilla Fink, to the Tannehill Orphan

Agent Dorente will endeavor to prove that the child has been reared in the midst of vice. The child, a bright looking girl, was dressed in a cheap blue print dress and her eyes showed traces of recent tears. She was very timid and could not be induced to
